California Gasoline Consumption Down 0.8% in July 2010

Barbara Alby, Acting Member of the State Board of Equalization (BOE), today released gasoline and diesel consumption figures for July 2010. California gasoline demand fell by 0.8 percent in July compared to last year.

In July 2010, Californians used 1.27 billion gallons of gasoline compared to 1.28 billion gallons the same month last year, a decline of 0.8 percent. The average California gasoline price at the pump in July was $3.17 per gallon compared to $2.92 in July 2009, an increase of 8.6 percent.

California diesel fuel data show an increase of 1.6 percent in July over last year, which is a slight variation due to refunds for diesel fuel in July 2009. Data show diesel fuel sold in California during July 2010 totaled 219.3 million gallons compared to July 2009's total of 215.8 million gallons, which is an increase of 1.6 percent. California diesel fuel prices were $3.12 per gallon in July 2010 compared to $2.73 per gallon in July 2009, an increase of 14.3 percent.

However, while the diesel gallons reflected in the July numbers are up 3.5 million gallons, indicating an increase of 1.6 percent, the consumption change from last July is likely to be less because the July 2009 figures include refunded gallons of 9.6 million gallons. The gallons included in the monthly consumption numbers are always net of audit assessments and refunds. The July 2009 refunds were larger than most and may have skewed the July 2010 percentage change to a 1.6 percent increase from a decline of 2.7 percent.

The BOE is able to monitor gallons through tax receipts paid by fuel distributors. The figures reported monthly are net consumption that includes BOE audit assessments, refunds, amended and late tax returns, and State Controller's Office refunds. Figures for August 2010 are scheduled to be available at the end of November 2010. All monthly, quarterly, and annual figures can be viewed at: www.boe.ca.gov/sptaxprog/spftrpts.htm.
